Salvo Awarded 2026 FPCA Fellowship

Honored for Distinguished Leadership, Mentorship, and Service to the Industry

March 23, 2026, Orlando, Fla. - The Florida Prestressed Concrete Association (FPCA) honored Lenny Salvo of Coreslab Structures, Orlando with the FPCA Fellowship Award at this year's Winter Meeting. The FPCA Fellowship Award is an honor reserved for individuals whose leadership, dedication and service have made a lasting impact on the prestressed, precast concrete industry and on FPCA.

Getting his start as a part-time drafter, Salvo's career journey is marked with hard work and tenacity, working his way through the company to his current role as vice president and senior sales representative. Salvo's 41 years in the industry are defined by meaningful engagement and sustained commitment. Beyond his expertise, Salvo's contribution to the industry is accentuated by his dedication of time, leadership, and an unwavering belief in the importance of a strong professional community.

"Lenny is an integral member of our organization and a strong contributor to the success of the prestressed, precast concrete construction industry," says Diep Tu, executive director, FPCA. "His leadership on committees and keen insights during meetings continue to shape and guide how we build in Florida."

Salvo strengthens the industry through mentorship, as well as local and national service. His involvement in various committees includes serving as a liaison on sustainability subcommittees, chairing the financial and risk management committee with the Precast/Prestressed Concrete Institute (PCI), and leading the organization as a former president of FPCA.

"It is a privilege to be a part of FPCA," says Salvo, "Our members are passionate about the industry and it is refreshing to see competitors and associate members come together to strengthen awareness about the benefits of prestressed, precast concrete construction."

Salvo continues to support not only the past but the present and the future of FPCA. Congratulations again to Lenny Salvo, this year's recipient of the distinguished FPCA Fellowship Award.

The Florida Prestressed Concrete Association (FPCA) was founded in 1957 by a small group of construction leaders and visionaries when the Precast/Prestressed industry in the United States was less than a decade old. FPCA was the first of its kind precast concrete association in the nation. It is from this group that the national association, the Precast/Prestressed Concrete Institute (PCI) was created. FPCA is a not-for-profit Florida corporation. The FPCA's goal then, in 1957 is the same as now, which is to provide the construction industry in Florida a superior building system that is durable, attractive and economical.
